Read It! Learn It! Post-It!

by Al Sandberg

When reading a dry and difficult textbook, it is very hard to remember what you have just learned. By using the "Read it! Learn it! Post it!" (RLP) reading strategy, comprehension skills will increase significantly!

How do I use RLP?

1. Begin reading the text
2. When you find an important piece of information that might be on an upcoming test, read the sentence aloud.
3. Place a Post-it on that sentence in the book so that you can review easier for the test.

This has helped in my Human Development class as I read through a detailed textbook with specific discipline language. It has helped me know what to study for the test.